

Dear Readers,

On behalf of my colleagues and I at the Embassy of Afghanistan in Oslo, I wish you all a very happy peaceful, joyous and prosperous New Year to you, your families and loved ones. 2020 was by no means an easy year. It was a year of new trials and tribulations, which compounded existing challenges and brought new hardships and difficulties in different ways around the world. The spread of the Covid-19 pandemic took the lives of more than one million peoples of different nationalities, religions and cultures. It was testament of the shared destiny of all of humanity in regards to the imperative of cooperation and solidarity. In this context, let us look into new year – 2021 - with confidence and hope for a better and more prosperous year, through greater international cooperation. In Afghanistan, we are hopeful that the long-standing efforts and sacrifice of the people of our country, and that of our international partners will lead to a dignified and lasting peace, based on the demands and expectations of all Afghans which have been emphasized in the clearest terms possible. With the next round of negotiations between the Islamic Republic of Afghanistan and the Taliban set to begin this week, we hope the people's desire for a cease-fire will be come to fruition to spare any further innocent lives. We again thank all of our international partners for their continued support of our peace efforts. Here at the Embassy of Afghanistan in Oslo, my colleagues and I look forward to continue fostering new initiatives in various fields with our Norwegian friends and partners in the context of our close and strong bilateral strategic partnership. In conclusion, we again express our best wishes for the swift recovery of all who were affected in last week's landslide in Gjerdrum, Norway. We stand in full solidarity and support with our Norwegian friends as they recover from that natural disaster.
